Social and Personal \

Nothing could have been a more brilliant success musically and socialy, than was the opening musicale of the autumn at the Woman's Club last afternoon.

Miss Louise Willams, the chairman of the day, received many well deserved congratulations over the beautiful programme, which had been arranged, and which was presented by her to the delight of every one present, through her friends, Miss Elizabeth Armistead Taylor and Miss Virginia Roper, of Norfolk, and Miss Effie Aylett Cofer, of this city. Miss Taylor's clear, pure soprane and Miss Cofer's rich contraito mingled to the greatest possible advantage in their duets, which could only have been excelled in beauty by their solos. Miss Roper's numbers on the plane and her acompaniments elicited the most admiring comment from all present, and proved her a planist of rare sweetness and skill. The programme in full was as follows:

1. Preludes, op. 28-6, 15, 20, 22, Chopin—Miss Roper.

2. (a) Necklace of Love, Nevin; (b)

We love to make others feel that life is worth the chance, and that some day they may own a vacant lot somewhere on the outskirts that may be a big speculation for their grandchildren.

It must be nice to contemplate, from a cozy window corner of the almshouse a handsome brown stone structure going up on a lot once owned as a worthless pile of ashes and tin cans.

We love to read the signs in the windows and the ads. In the magazines.

They give us inspiration and they urge us on to efforts that might lay dormant upon an empty pocket-book.

For instance, we saw this in a current magazine ad:

"How to Get Cash."

Then we stopped eating our buckwheat cakes and read:

"Put your real estate in our hands, and we'll get the cash."

cakes and read;
"Put your real estate in our hands, and we'll get the cash."

If we only had a little real estate, we wouldn't need the cash so much. Then we poured some more maple syrup on the buckwheats and started in again.
But the ad, "You Save Money," caught our eye, and we turned from our sumptuous repast once more to read:

"We make the finest diamonds on earth and you can save from 15 to 25 cents b Still, there are signs that do no good to

Take the one in Cuningham Judson's place: "Don't go elsewhere to be cheat-ed; come here." That carries with it a sense of humor that we had no idea existed in the solemn brains of our good And the sign in Levi Jacob's window:

We are neither jealous or envious.
Or words to that effect.
We revel in seeing others reap rewards and benefits and we laugh when a fellow gets a bouquet that we think ought to come to us.
We do not covet.
Yet, at the same time, it makes us mad as anything when we see the city ash art take away the ashes from our neighbors' back yard and leave ours out in the weather.

We extend a heaviy welcome to Peck and His Mother-in-law, and we hope by this time that peace lies gracefully at his

A mother-in-law is a good thing to A mound.

She knows how to pull out infantile teeth with a piece of string, and she can soothe the aching brow that comes to a barefooted boy with the measles.

She can tell the cook a whole lot of things that the cook don't know, and she can make the cook mad.

But we like to see the cook get mad.

Treat and Chinese.

United States Marshal Morgan s now well started on his trans cental tour as escort for forty-two is now west started on his transcontinental tour as escort for forty-two allen Chinese, who will be shipped from San Francisco for their native land. Mr. Treat left Norfolk Sunday evening with his protogees, the railway lines furnishing guards for the Mongolians en routs. The trip was made from Norfolk to Danville, via the Atlantic and Danville, and thence via the Southern to New Orleans, and thence over the Southern Pacific, via El Paso and Los Angeles to Trisco. Among the deported Mongolians several are from Norfolk; one from this city, and others from eastern cities, from Norfolk to Boston. These Chinese were found to be in this country in violation of the exclusion laws, and must now pay the penalty—deportation.
